FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CHARLESTON, IL --Students enrolled in off-campus continuing education courses sponsored by Eastern Illinois University this summer will pay a course delivery charge in addition to tuition and book rental.

The delivery cost for persons taking courses in Eastern's central service area (within 30 miles of campus) will be $5 per semester hour. According to the Office of Continuing Education, the additional cost will cover expenses of instructors, including transportation and meals, and certain class materials beyond book rental.

According to the office, these costs have previously been met by the University. A spokesman said the move became necessary because of rising educational costs and tighter budgets.

Off campus tuition for the summer is $25.25 per semester hour for undergraduates and $27.25 for graduate students. Book rental is $5 per course for undergraduates and graduates.
